Pet Owners Breathe Easy with Air Purifiers

You may not be actively allergic to cats and dogs, but if you have these animals in your home, you are constantly inhaling pet dander. Over time, this can do quite a number on your respiratory system. Even if you do not realize the toll that living with pets is having on your respiratory system, breathing in pet dander on a regular basis can have an adverse effect on your overall health.

Cleaning Is Not Enough

There are a number of things that you can do to keep pet dander at bay and help alleviate allergies, asthma and other respiratory issues, such as:

- Vacuuming
- Dusting
- General cleaning

However, regular cleaning is just not enough to keep you and the members of your family breathing easy. It is possible to live with pets and breathe clean air, as long as you use the right air purifier for pet dander and pet hair.

It does not matter if you have one pet or a dozen, nor does it matter if your pet has long hair or short. If you live with a pet in your home, pet dander is a fact of life for you. Pets are constantly shedding dander and fur as they go about their day.

You will notice the obvious evidence in the pet hair, especially in places where your cat or dog lays the most. Many pet owners feel that they are staying ahead of the game by cleaning regularly and keeping the pet hair to a minimum.

Unfortunately, even with all the mopping, vacuuming and dusting in the world, you cannot get rid of pet dander completely. As soon as you put away your vacuum cleaner, your dog or cat actively sheds more and more dander and hair. Regardless of the fact that you spent all that money on a top-of-the-line vacuum cleaner with a special pet hair removal feature, it will not perform a miracle.

The quality of the air inside your home is constantly compromised by mold spores, dust mites and other airborne pollutants. Owning a pet only adds to the indoor contamination. Your best solution is using an air purifier for pet dander and pet hair.
